PROPOSE TO FIGHT GOEBEL

Opposition Meeting of Democrats Held and Movement Started.

BOWLING GREEN, Ky., July 25.—The anti-Goebel meeting here was largely attended. Ex-Congressman W. C. Owens sent a letter condemning the nomination of Goebel for governor. The meeting adopted resolutions condemning the movement inaugurated by so-called Democrats in eastern states to abandon the principles of the Chicago platform; endorsing William J. Bryan for president; and charging that the state convention in Louisville, which nominated Goebel, was perverted from its true purpose by corruption, fraud and force, by intrigue and treachery, by infamous rulings of the acting chairman, etc.

The resolutions deny that the ticket is entitled to or should receive the support of the party in this state. A "provisional executive committee" of 12 was requested to meet at Lexington Aug. 6.

POPULATION IN 1900.

INDICATIONS THAT THERE WILL BE 75,000,000 OF US.

No Signs That We Are Growing Less in Numbers or Character—Healthy Effect of Restricted Immigration, Growth of Leading Cities.

(Special Correspondence.)

WASHINGTON, July 24.—The pessimistic prophecy which gained currency some weeks ago that our ratio of increase in population had not been maintained during the past few years is not verified by facts. It was alleged that the increase in the population of the United States since 1890 would not be greater in 1900 than 10,000,000, which, added to the total in 1890, would bring up the total to 72,000,000.

Closer observation shows that while the increase in population since 1870 has been put generally at 12,000,000 a year, it was in fact less at the beginning of the period and more at the close. From 1870 to 1880 the annual gain in population in the United States averaged 1,100,000. In the ten years between 1880 and 1890 the annual gain averaged 1,240,000. It is quite true that for the whole period of 20 years the average annual increase was 1,200,000, but the gain in the second ten years was materially larger than during the first. There is no reason whatever yet furnished why the population of the United States between 1890 and 1900 should in its growth be gauged by the ten years following the close of the civil war, some of the unfavorable effects of which continued to be reflected for many years afterward. Again the restrictions imposed on immigration, while they have reduced the total number of newcomers, have reduced them in a way to have least influence on the growth of population. The decrepit, the infirm, the ailing, the needy and the criminal have been excluded, but those who add to the wealth and contribute to the benefit of a country have been admitted on the same terms as heretofore.

Sanitary regulations in the large cities have materially decreased the death rate, and it is a gratifying fact that the increase of urban population is accompanied by an elevation of the character of the people. The statistics of city population of 1890 are interesting in this connection.

Below are the gross increases in their order in the 28 leading American cities; also the increase in the preceding decade for comparative purposes, as well as their total population in 1890:

New Orleans	25,499	35,972	242,789

This exhibit includes all the cities in the United States exceeding 100,000 in population in 1890. But a number of others with less population also made notable increases in the last decade, exceeding some of those enumerated.

According to the last federal census there were approximately 55,000,000 white inhabitants of the United States, 7,500,000 colored inhabitants, 100,000 Mongolians and 58,000 civilized Indians. The ratio of increase among the Chinese compared with the previous census was only 1 per cent. The civilized Indians showed a falling off, while the increase among the colored population of the country was only 13 per cent, as against 25 per cent in the total number of inhabitants. In other words, the increase of the white population is about double that of the colored population, and, as each year the proportion of white population grows larger and the proportion of colored population in the country grows correspondingly less, it is likely that the rate of increase in the white population grows larger from this cause. Assuming the increase of the colored population of the country to be in accordance with the same percentage as was returned in 1900 would be 8,475,000, and if the increase of the white population maintains the same proportion as prior to 1890 the total number of white inhabitants will be 63,400,000, and, with the Chinese and civilized Indians added—the uncivilized Indians are not included in the census—the total would be about 75,000,000.

Odd Companions.
The Kennebec Journal tells of a man who has a fox and a hound that are boon companions. When both animals were in the city state, they were placed together and have now enjoyed a year of each other's society in peace and harmony. They sleep together and play with each other much after the manner of two frolicsome pups. The fox has perfect freedom of action, coming and going at will, but he always returns at night to share the dog's bed.

Strictly, there is no such thing as the pursuit of happiness; we simply dodge unhappiness.—Detroit Journal.

Enterprise.

"THE AKRON DAILY DEMOCRAT shows commendable enterprise in its souvenir edition issued in honor of the Elks of that city, who are now conducting their second annual street fair and carnival. The paper is finely embellished throughout with half-tone cuts of some of Akron's handsome men printed in the colors of the order. Akron—and especially the Elks to whom the souvenir edition is dedicated—have a right to feel proud of the enterprise displayed by the DAILY DEMOCRAT of their wide-awake city."—Canton Democrat.

HEAD-LIGHT.

Invention of a Sixteen Year Old Boy.

Throws Clear White Light 500 Feet—Patent Applied For.

Merle, 16-year-old son of Superintendent Chas. Bien, of the A. & C. F. R. T. company, of 303 State st., has invented a headlight for street cars and yachts which promises to be a good thing.

The young man, who is already quite an electrician, doing odd jobs about the Rapid Transit company's office, has been at work on the invention for about three years and the results are very satisfactory.

Experiments with the light have shown that it will throw a strong white light for a distance of 500 feet. The light is much better than that made by oil, being instead produced by carbide of calcium. It is so arranged that the light can be either turned up or down.

A patent has been applied for and indications are that it will be granted soon.

The United States Head Light Co. of Chicago, have written to the young man in reference to handling the light should it prove to be as good as present indications show it to be.

LOCAL ARTIST.

His Humorous Sketches Published in "Railroad Telegrapher."

Kirk L. Russell, operator at the Erie passenger station, is an artist of considerable ability. Humorous subjects are his best field.

In a recent issue of the Railroad Telegrapher, a magazine and official organ of the Order of Railroad Telegraphers, published at Peoria, Ill., ten humorous illustrations of incidents occurring at the national convention of telegraphers, held at Peoria in May appear on one of the pages, over the explanatory note "Russell's Reminiscences of the Convention."

The sketches are cleverly drawn, showing a great deal of ability in the artist.

Camp Meeting, Boston Ledges next Sunday.

Summit Lake Park.

The large casino at this resort was crowded last evening, and judging from the continual applause, the audience was well pleased. McIntyre and Rice captivated and held the audience from the start in their usual manner, being entertainers, who are certainly above the average. Devere and Kenwick, who made their first appearance last evening before an Akron audience, certainly did themselves credit.

The trick violin playing of Mr. Devere and the dancing of Miss Kenwick deserve special mention. Of Mr. Harry Sheldon little need be said as the Akron theater-goers are familiar with his work by reason of his connection for the past three seasons with the A. G. Field minstrels, being the principal soloist with that popular institution. He possesses a voice of unusual range and sweetness and won the audience very easily with his stylish and graceful work. Last, but not least, is the wonderful Ladem, a hand-balance and contortionist of much merit, introducing some of the most difficult tricks known to the profession. The Casino should be packed every night this week, as this is one of the high class entertainments which never fail to please.
